

The most important moment was the Quebec Conference of 1864 because it was really during the Quebec Conference that the model for what would become the Canada of 1867 the British North America Act was drawn up. It was at the Quebec Conference that delegates decided to agree upon the idea of a monarchy and the idea of a federation. These are the two bases of what would become the Canada of 1867.